McGill-Dalhousie Misunderstanding Cleared by S.E.C.

Radio Committee Set Up

Clarification of a serious misunderstanding between McGill and Dalhousie University was one of the main points on the agenda of the Students Executive Council at their regular weekly meeting last night.

The misunderstanding which involved the tennis team of the Maritime college and the Athletics Office here was raised to the status of a feud following newspaper accounts of a supposed mistreatment of the former which appeared in the Dalhousie Gazette, then several Halifax papers and finally, the Canadian Press during the past few days.

Gist of the occurrence involved a supposed reference to the Dal team as foreigners—a reference which Major D. S. Forbes, Athletics Manager, the individual singled out by the easterners, termed "utter rot." In addition, the visitors complained of supposed poor treatment and discourtesy at the hands of the Major. The cry was taken up both by the sports pages of the Halifax papers and spread to the editorial columns of the Halifax Herald.

However, in a statement to the Council and to The Daily last night, Major Forbes termed his attitude as misinterpreted and his statements misrepresented, statements attributed to him by the Dalhousie tennis team manager which included "any future visit (by Dalhousie) as neither necessary nor desirable."

The Major concluded that if some statements were considered as representing inhospitality, towards the visitors, he "abjectly apologizes."

The situation arose following the return to Halifax of the tennis team which played McGill over a week ago, supposedly for the Dominion championship, a mythical title which McGill at no time claimed.

Further business at the meeting included reports on Athletics, the Junior Prom, the Forge and other campus groups and events.

Possibilities for radio broadcasting by McGill students will be looked into by a temporary committee under the chairmanship of John Piper, publicity manager for the Athletics Office. Various other interested groups and clubs are included on the committee which will submit a constitution for the formation of a more permanent structure.

A report on the panel committees of N.F.C.U.S. was also presented, and it was anticipated that final drafts of the various committees will be forthcoming within the next two weeks.

Negotiations have been entered into for the installation of a telephone for students in the Redpath Library. The Council were assured by the Bell Telephone Company that the Library will have priority as soon as the instruments are available.

SLC To Hear Speaker 8 p.m.

Norman Penner, an executive of the Federation of Labour Youth, will be the speaker at an open meeting of the Student Labour Club this evening at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Mr. Penner's subject will be the Labour Youth Parliament which is to occur at the end of this month in Toronto. More than 300 delegates from all over Canada are expected to attend the parliament. The agenda for discussion includes such topics as education, working conditions, health and recreation of Canadian youth.

LIBERAL CLUB

There will be an important meeting of the Executive of the McGill Liberal Club on Thursday, November 21st, at 1 p.m. in a corner of the Union Ballroom. All members of the Executive are requested to attend.

NFCUS Exec. Discusses ISS and IRC

The Executive of the permanent committee at McGill of the National Federation of Canadian University Students met yesterday and discussed the relationship that ISS might have with the official campus organizations, the Students' Executive Council and NFCUS particularly, and the national student organizations such as the International Relations Club, IVCF, SCM.

It was generally agreed that NFCUS, locally and nationally, should be the medium whereby any exchange of information, services, ideas and students with other countries might be achieved. Although not fully discussed, the principle that any international organization should carry out its aims through an existing national body was considered a sound one and acceptable as a basis for the policy of NFCUS locally. The Chairman of NFCUS informed the meeting, composed of executive members and panel chairmen, that it was the considered opinion of the President of the SEC that the International Student Services at McGill should be organized as part of the panel on Cultural Exchange—within and between Universities.

The relationship that ISS might take with the International Relations Club was considered as being the only one consistent with the methods of the former and the aims of the latter; members of the IRC would complement their interests as such by taking an active part in the work of such bodies as ISS, namely, the International Union of Students, the World Federation of Democratic Youth, if they should consider any of these representative enough to warrant their cooperation. Members of the Cultural Exchange Panel and of the International Relations Club would be the logical choices for Student Exchange with other countries. It was held, as they would be the best informed, the most interested members on the campus; the choice in such matters would, in essence, follow natural and obvious lines.

However it was decided to suspend any decision in the matter until the International Relations Club had decided the extent of their participation. An organizational meeting of the latter is to be held today, in the Music Room at Five (5) o'clock, and as a new executive is to be elected, the policy

The Band Plays On!

New University Band May Cut Records For "McGill Speaks"

(This is the third of a series of articles prepared by the University Band executive intended to enlighten the student body on the present condition of the McGill Band.)

Two years ago, at C.O.T.C. Camp, the Adjutant walked into the band room during a rehearsal, and calmly asked if the band would be ready to play a full half hour radio program in four days time. Bandmaster Springer saluted, and said, "Yes." The Adjutant then informed the bandmaster that inasmuch as the job had been accepted, he supposed it would not be too inconvenient for the band to spend another hour or so making records of the whole program. Bandmaster Springer saluted and again said, "Yes."

In those days the band merely did what it was told. Rehearsals lasted approximately three hours—no smoking—no talking except during breaks. Bandmen took basic training, sweated in battle-dress, and could not resign once they signed up. And yet, McGill's C.O.T.C. had one of the finest bands in the Reserve Army.

Wake up men, the war is over! Bandmen now wear the impressive red and white. They travel

Vancouver, November 20. (CUP) — Amid much disruption and shouting, Tim Buck, leader of the Labor-Progressive Party, boldly declared in an address to 1,500 students at the University of British Columbia, that if Canada were drawn into war against Russia, he would not fight, but go into hiding. His declaration was made in answer to a question from the floor asking if Canada was drawn into war against Russia. Mr. Buck predicted in his address that Britain and the United States would soon be hostile to each other in the struggle for world markets. He also prophesied that after ten years of peace in Europe, the continent itself would be socialist with the Socialists consisting of two-thirds of the world's population.

Contributions Made to Red White Revue

The Producers of the Red and White Revue were very pleased with the results of their audition held in the Union Ballroom yesterday afternoon. At least 12 contributors appeared, with some very promising material.

Perhaps the most outstanding contributions were made by Bill Russell and Archie Elienne. Both these composers arrived with songs which indicated inspiration as well as careful arranging. The producers feel that they have just begun to explore the latent talent in the field of composition on the campus and intend to announce another audition later.

There are still openings for such numbers as patter songs, calypsoes and background music for dance routines of all kinds. D'Arcy Shea is the Musical Director and he will be glad to help anyone who is having technical difficulties.

Dick Hunter, the choreographer, was on hand to assure that the music would lend itself to dance routines. He would like to hear from anyone who has written a rumba or any number which has a South American flavor. Mr. Hunter also has announced that he will be calling the auditions for dancers in the very near future.

A call board has been placed on

U. of M. Makes Debut In Radio Entertainment

"McGill Calling" now has a rival in the field of college radio. "Quartier Latin," an all student radio program of the University of Montreal, is now on the air from 8.30 to 9 p.m. every Monday over C.H.L.P. A wide variety of entertainment will be offered on these programs, as 24 minutes of the half hour will be given to a different faculty each week to use as they please. A fourteen piece student orchestra will play for the program, and "Le Quartier Latin" will provide a weekly news bulletin.

Debaters Oppose Osgoode In Moyse Hall Tonight at 8

Archer, Patterson in Toronto; Berbrer, Oliver Here Debate on Effect of Compulsory Union Membership on Community

The McGill Debating Society is embarking today on another one of its important debating series as it faces the team of Osgoode Hall, which is the Law school of the University of Toronto, in a home and home series contest on the topic, "Resolved that compulsory union membership—the closed shop—is for the welfare of the community." The home team in both cases will defend the topic.

Last year McGill compiled one of the most favorable debating records on the North American continent as they heralded their return to intercollegiate debating by winning thirteen debates and losing but two. This year with the leading forensic stars of last year back the Debating Union handpicked their opponents. As yet they have not been defeated.

Tonight at Moyse Hall at 8.15, Boris Berbrer and Michael Oliver will be out to maintain this record. Both men are well acquainted with the topic under discussion for Berbrer was chairman of last year's Mock Parliament Committee while Michael Oliver was a cabinet minister in the last C.C.F.

government in the Mock Parliament.

The Chairman for the debate in Montreal is Mr. Lyle Benson, the winner of the Dr. Milton Hersey Gold Medal for the Montreal Senior Oratorical Championship. Mr. Benson is the Chairman of the Junior Section of the Young Men's Board of Trade Public Speaking Division. Judges for the debate include Dean Evans, prominent Montreal clergyman, Mr. O. B. Rexford, vice-principal of Commercial High School and Mr. D. A. Chisholm of the Bell Telephone Company who is Senior instructor of the Young Men's Board of Trade Public Speaking Club.

The debate in Toronto is scheduled for this morning at 11. For McGill, two more men, who used the Mock Parliament as a training school, will attack the resolution. Bill Archer is the president of the Progressive Conservative Club on the Campus while Jim Paterson holds a similar position in the Liberal Club.

This is the second year in succession that McGill and Osgoode Hall have opposed each other.

Lectures on Living

Sociologist Says "Gallup Poll" An Aid To Better Government

"Public opinion polls have a definite place in government today," said Dr. Cottrell last night in Moyse Hall in the fifth talk of the series, "Lectures on Living." A well known authority on sociology—he is chairman of the Department of Sociology in Cornell University—Dr. Cottrell is also well equipped to talk on the problems of government having worked for the War Department in the States during the recent war.

In recent years there has been an enormous increase in the use of scientific methods of gauging and predicting public opinion by government agencies. Being particularly familiar with the American scene, Dr. Cottrell traced this trend from the crude beginnings of the Department of Agriculture to such agencies as the Office of War Information, that appeared during the war. In each case not only have the methods and techniques improved but also the effectiveness of the agency.

Public opinion research can solve such problems as the extent of the public's information on any issue, as well as their opinion on the subject, he said. From this it can also be found what the public wants to be done on the question and what their reaction to some policy in the future would be.

However, he added, there are many improvements possible in present techniques, for instance the following problems have not been solved. How do people make up their mind and how do they change it? How closely does peoples behaviour follow what they say they will do in a survey? Despite these unanswered questions the advance of modern technology and the increase in size of modern states will force the institution public opinion polls in some form. Public opinion works both ways for with the knowledge of how much the public knows about important issues then it is much easier to keep the public enlightened and informed.

After an intensive question period it was announced by the chairman that the next talk will be given by Dr. Alan Ballantyne, President of the University of Rochester, on the subject "Men in Politics." This lecture will be in Moyse Hall at 8 o'clock on Wednesday, 27 November, Dr. F. Cyril James will be in the chair.

Comm., Men Defeated By Co-ed Debators

An R.V.C. debating team of Ann Ryan and Joan Morrisson yesterday defeated two Commerce men, Lloyd Rogers and Bob Paterson in a debate entitled "Resolved that women students should be allowed to use the main entrance of the Arts Building." The judges, Ted Hugessen, Sydney Fullerton, and Charlie Butterworth, voted two to one in favour of the coeds mainly on account of the latter's better presentation.

Some sixty spectators witnessed the debate, one of the most interesting of the half dozen inter-faculty debates thus far. The debate was begun in a serious vein by Ann Ryan who, by use of a blackboard diagram, showed how there is a cross current of students inside the main entrance at the present time. She suggested that if the side entrance were used by those students leaving and the main entrance were used by those entering the building then the congestion might be lessened. Lloyd Rogers then arose to give a few mathematical facts about the dimension of the doorway, the maximum rate of flow of students through the main door, etc. He pointed out some half a dozen reasons why the existing regulations should not be changed, one of them being the increased congestion which would result from women's tendency to talk profusely in busy places. Joan Morrisson opened her

Defence Survey Team To Come Here Soon

Three teams of defence and research personnel will spend the next three weeks visiting universities throughout Canada, assessing the potential technical and professional ability available for Canada's future defence needs, an R.C.N. announcement revealed recently.

Because of the great technological advances of modern warfare, the need for this survey is urgent, and through it the armed services hope to obtain every type of university trained man with technical or executive ability. The Army, Navy, Air Force, and civilian research will be represented on the team which will shortly visit McGill. They will outline Canada's defence needs and conditions of service to enable students to adjust their courses.

debate with a criticism of the frivolous argument just put forward by her opponent. She later, however, described, with tongue in cheek, a coed and her boyfriend approaching the Arts Building. The latter gets as far as "Come with me to the—" before he has to leave his partner, who must use a different entrance. Bob Paterson finished off the argument for Commerce by pointing to the generosity of McGill College in extending the use of a special entrance to the coeds, who, after all, are not a part of the College.

He felt that the women students had not accepted this privilege very graciously. Ann Ryan then ended the debate with a sharp attack in the negative.

All Tickets For Junior Prom Sold

After a three day unprecedented sale to students of third year the Junior Prom Committee finds that a complete sell-out of the 550 tickets up for sale has occurred.

Never in the history of the affair has such a demand for tickets existed. There are approximately 1500 third year students and the tickets sold coupled with the students turned away makes it seem likely that all 1500 were desirous of going. The larger faculties were all sold out on the first or second days.

Reservations for tables for the Prom will be taken for a two-day period beginning next Monday. The reservations may be made by telephoning MA. 2697 next Monday or Tuesday evening between 7:30 and 10 p.m. If it is easier ticket holders may go directly to the UNTD office in the gym between these hours and make their reservations there. No reservations will be accepted for people without tickets so upon making arrangements, the Junior Prom Committee will need to know the number of people sitting at the table and the numbers on the tickets.

Despite an earlier report the Prom Committee received word today that permission for RCAF vets to wear their uniforms has been refused. Permission has been granted for the army and navy to wear their uniforms however.

Co-eds Discuss Cheerleading At RVC Today

"Should McGill have Women Cheerleaders?" will be the topic for discussion at the Round-Table today when the Women's Debating Union holds its second general meeting of the year. The meeting is at 5 p.m. in the Common room of R.V.C., and will serve as practice ground for the coming inter-faculty debate on Dec. 4.

A report will be submitted by Florence Trotter on an interview with Dr. M. V. Roscoe concerning this vital question. Several "hat-box" talks will be given by members of the Debating Union, after which the discussion will be thrown open to the floor.

Cheerleading has assumed mammoth proportions as a topic for discussion since, as everyone knows, women have been forbidden to act in this capacity on the McGill campus, whereas "Cheerleaders" form an integral part of many other Canadian university sports programs.

The appearance of 3 men, dressed as women cheerleaders, at the Varsity game, point out the general lack of and desire for feminine cheerleaders. Discussion has waxed hot and heavy concerning this issue between both men and women while the Faculty has remained adamant.

Minimum Of 275 Required

In order that a general meeting of the Dawson College Students' Society can be held to-night a minimum attendance of 275 members is required to complete a quorum. This meeting, to be held in Theatre One at 7.00 p.m., is the second to be called by the Dawson Students' Executive Council in two weeks, the previous meeting being dismissed as less than forty members attended, insufficient for a quorum.

Purpose of Meeting

The meeting is being held for two reasons, first among them being the fulfillment of the requirements of the Society's constitution which call for a general meeting to be held within one month following the election of the Council. Secondly a discussion is to be held upon amendments to the constitution which have been proposed by the Students' Executive Council of McGill University.

The present constitution was drawn up and ratified at a general meeting of the Society last year, but when presented to the Executive of the parent body, the McGill Students' Society, some changes were thought desirable in order that the Dawson Constitution could be brought into line with that of the McGill Society. These changes, in the form of proposed amendments, will form the chief item on the agenda of today's meeting, a two-thirds majority being necessary for their acceptance.

Other matters of business will be discussed upon presentation of a motion by any member of the Society.

Sir George Enrolment Has Increased Trouble

Montreal, Nov. 20. (CUP)—Enrolment at Sir George Williams College has increased, from a pre-war 1618 to 4997 students this year, a report released recently showed. The overwhelming expansion is due in part to the return of vast numbers of servicemen, and consequently the establishment of the special College Preparatory Class for Veterans at the Claremont Avenue Division.

Although a number of new teachers have been appointed, there is still a great strain on the college staff. All faculties are being worked to their fullest capacities in order to meet the increasing educational demands. The opening of the new Stanley Street Annex in the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue should help ease the situation by February.

WORLD EVENTS

WASHINGTON.—The United States apparently faced a paralyzing coal strike with John L. Lewis giving no sign of obedience to a restraining order and the government dropping no hint of what it intended to do. Of the 400,000 soft coal miners, 132,000 are already unemployed. A rail freight embargo is considered by the U.S. government.

OTTAWA.—The entire emergency housing program has so far this year provided about 5,000 units, of which slightly over 3,000 have been provided by the Dominion through a fund of $1,800,000. In addition, federal buildings have been leased to municipalities to a value of over $4,000,000. These figures were given by Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe in a 15-minute radio talk.

OTTAWA.—The Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has decided that studies should be made of the possibility of establishing publicly-owned television facilities in Montreal and Toronto.

Dawson Constitution

The students of Dawson College have shown enough initiative to draw up a constitution for the students' society on that campus. However, the constitution has yet to be ratified with the changes suggested at the last meeting of the Students' Executive Council in Montreal. The main purpose, then, of the meeting this evening at Dawson will be to approve this body of fundamental principles—a purpose which cannot be overestimated if Dawson is to be run properly and with strength. For this reason, it is of the utmost importance to and in the best interests of students there to ensure a quorum so that official approval can be indicated. — A.K.

The Band Plays On

"Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast" runs a famous saying but the charm exists only if there are sufficient people available to provide the melodies that seem to have such a soothing influence upon our animal friends. This year, the case of the McGill Band affords a striking example for proving the foregoing sentence.

Everything possible has been done this year to ensure the success of the undergraduates' band. A capable local band-master has been engaged to instruct the budding musicians, instruments have been newly purchased and trips have been given as inducements to prospective members. Yet, the band has been faced with a shortage of members thus far and through no fault of their own, the quality of the music hasn't reached its full potentialities.

It seems rather strange that a college the size of Western can have a fifty-two piece band while McGill barely manages to muster twenty-five students who manifest some interest in music and their university. And this is not only directed towards the male undergraduates, but also towards the co-eds. Women have invaded another precious male precinct for college bands in the United States are famous for their sprinkling of members of the so-called weaker sex. The custom has spread to Canada also with the appearance of a co-ed clarinet player in the Toronto Varsity band. Thus, any hopeful female musician has an opportunity to find an outlet for her musical aspirations in the McGill Band.

The sparkling Red and White uniforms of the group lend a certain definite air of colour to all functions at which they perform. Despite the fact that they have suffered from the previously-mentioned scarcity of musicians there is no doubt but that a steadily improving calibre of playing has been definitely noticeable.

Like many other student undertakings the Band deserves far more than the mere passive support of the undergraduate body. It needs members and student apathy can't be offered as an excuse for a shortage of musicians. — H.S.

Mots Cuits

—by Ptolemy

AT A TIME when winter's cool notes suggest a bearish hibernation, one of our most unique contributor's slipped an odd little note into our basket. Our thoughts were of sleep, and warm, warm blankets, of steaming toddies of rum and honey... and... long... long... winter nights. Appended to the poem were a few lines of explanation, which illustrate emphatically the artist at work.

"This came to me in a flash while sitting philosophizing near a dung-heap. I felt that the imagery and cadences were particularly subtle and unappealing" ... frank, isn't he? A suggested title is Ivory Sewer, which recalls the old lines, "I have never seen a purple cow... etc." wandering, slow and nevermoving, stagnant, red stagnant, still in its notness and neverness breathing the everness, transient, but with an arrogant transience timeless and still, whitewalled, encrusted, embarnacled, underneath breathing perhaps, but unliving.

there and no otherness, loverless, motherless, pungent, but still with the androgynous' pungency, mobile, yet still.

Here is an embodiment of some of the doctrines of the slightly more infamous, E. E. Cummings who is noted for his typographical innovations, chiefly the lack of capitals and spaced lines—the significance of which is recognized only by the most diligent of readers. This strangeness helps, undoubtedly, to obscure the meaning of fundamentally simple lines, and is therefore hailed as great modern poetry. The whole trick in reading one of these compositions is to forget completely about punctuation, and rush blindly on until you are stopped for the lack of words... Sometimes the effects are surprising:

wandering, slow and nevermoving stagnant red stagnant still in its notness and neverness breathing the everness transient but with an arrogant transience timeless and still

Note the music of the 'ess' sounds which slow the lines to imitate the movement of the artist who shades his outlines... paradoxically, it is suggestive of motion, but it is not moving. I think our poet has attempted something along of this nature in Ivory Sewer... Of course, one can't be sure. Perhaps he did not mean anything in particular—which wouldn't be so unusual at that.

WE USED TO THINK that McGill simply teemed with novelists and poets. We used to think that Greenwich Village had nothing on Montreal's queer quarter. But the editors of the Forge tell us different. It would appear that a wonderful era of self-consciousness has befallen us... so that almost none of the perennial artists are as yet contributing. What a pity! Surely, out of nine thousand students who have had at least ninety thousand interesting experiences a few of these would be compelled to set them down on paper for all of us to see. If the smaller Queens can turn out a quarterly review of comparatively high literary standards, it would surely be much easier for McGill to fill two issues of the Forge... The deadline for copy is December 15.

JUST AS we were about to finish the column, the mad poet O.C.M. came rushing in the office and seizing us by the scruff of the neck, bellowed the following: "My dear friend, I have discovered the secret of life... You will print it, of course!" "Well," we said, biting our lips, "What is the secret?" Flinging his magnificent muffer over his left shoulder and flinging out his jaw, he uttered stentoriously:

Is not the problem of sexuality
Nothing but concavity and convexity?
Well, we think that just about settles that...

Informal Talk

by Dr. Cottrell

Social scientists must give up their narrow sectionalism if they are to make any real contribution to problems of modern society. This seemed a matter of prime urgency to Dr. Cottrell, one of the leading sociologists in the world today, and an author of many well-known books.

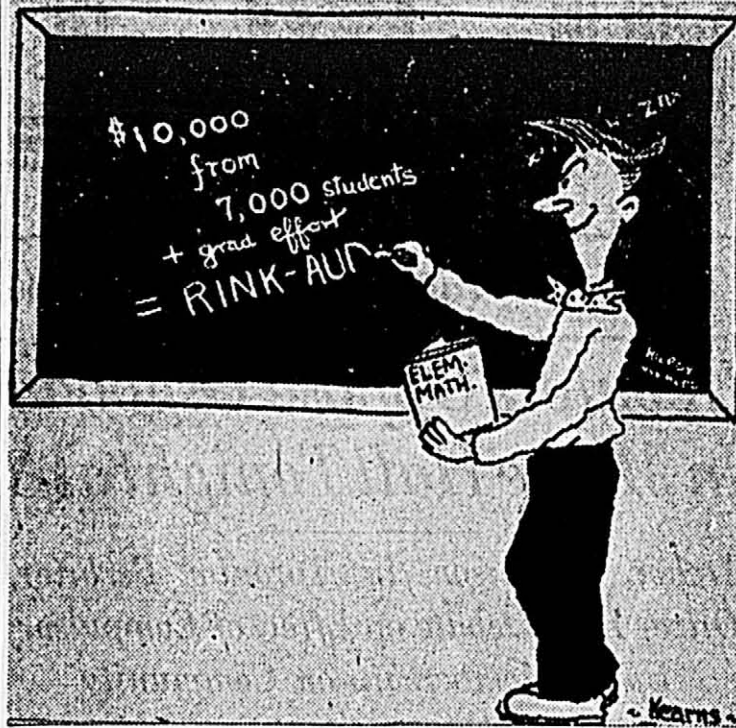

At an informal meeting of the Sociological Society yesterday afternoon Dr. Cottrell told of some of his past work. His most noted work "Predicting Success or Failure in Marriage" is the subject he likes best, he hopes that now his war duties are over he will be able to get back on this line of research.

One of the anomalies of the present times is the emphasis of society on the individual achieving success by himself while institutions and concerns are increasingly taking the lead in modern life. This situation produces tension in the individual and in many cases produces breakdown. This is a field that many of the social sciences are concerned and here is area of study that they might get together. Another is the problem of governing vast populations that want more and more services from the governing yet without losing any of their rights. The war showed how social scientists could work together as a team on almost any problem. Dr. Cottrell's own experiences are an excellent example of this. There is a movement now afoot to accomplish this, it is to be hoped that soon an enlightened public will soon demand it.

One of the first impressions one gets upon meeting Dr. Cottrell is that he does not look like a professor. Rather he looks and sounds like a small town American businessman.

Dr. Cottrell at first studied biology especially genetics but after the last war he became disillusioned with the failure of the League of Nations and hopes generally for a better world. These failures influenced him so much that he changed fields and became a sociologist. However he does not regret the training in scientific thinking that he got from biology.

With sociology Dr. Cottrell has found new reason for optimism for the world's future, though as he admitted he is a confirmed optimist by nature. He thinks that with the cooperation of all the social sciences and the forces of government that many of the problems of today could be more readily solved.

LETTER FORUM

The Editor, The McGill Daily:
Dear Sir;

As The Daily now enters our home again, after a lapse of a generation, I read with some concern, the article in November 7th issue entitled "Athletic Policy, Cause of Football Failure".

May my first word be of praise for the loyal and devoted service of Douglas Kerr, not only to McGill, but to the true spirit of amateurism in sport. In these days of "shamateurism", condoned and fostered by some of our "outstanding" citizens, in the interest of money-making or paying dividends on sports' investments, whether in money or prestige, I doff my hat to a man who is prepared to "go down" in the maintenance of an apparently "lost cause" of amateur sport.

I believe, as I know many others do, that the organizational set-up of McGill athletics in general, is wrong.

First things should come first. The University is a place of learning, and the maintenance of standards must be of first consideration; however, the social and athletic side of University life, is one of equal importance in the educational processes. For this reason the principles that are to govern the university activities in this latter field should be laid down by a responsible body.

If the commercializing of college athletics is the principle agreed on by the responsible body, then surely there ought to be no half-way measures in its execution. When sport and money-minded citizens in this city decided to put Montreal on the football map, they went about it in a businesslike way—it's no secret where the players came from, or why. Surely the players, the student body, the staff, the University head and the graduates ought to be the body charged with the carrying out of a policy agreed on, in principle, as to what the purpose of athletics is at McGill. If this body decided that athletics in general are for the purpose of developing young Canadian manhood and womanhood into good citizens, morally and physically, then every effort ought to be made to have as many as possible take part in them. One of the most essential requirements in the plans should be that the participants should enjoy and want to play the games. In my experience, this has not been the case, particularly in football.

The argument for a professional coach, as against an amateur, is futile; either one, if possessed of the right philosophy and spirit, can do equally well.

Football at McGill is not played as a money-making venture, so what the downtown press or others who occupy the role of 'secular' spectators think of the policy that the authorities decide, seems to be of little consequence under the circumstances. Generally speaking the glorification policy of the secular press, the singling out of the "heroes" in college sport, do not add to the stature of the individuals so selected in the eyes of the team, nor is it in the player's own interests.

Team play was necessary in war, so must it be in peace.

If our universities cannot withstand the temptation of commercializing sport, what a reflection on their standards, what a reflection on the spirit that motivates our highest educational institutions! The philosophy of mens sana in corpore sano would seem to have given way before the modern mammon-worshipping, and we would now seem to aim at turning out from our universities specialists in commerce and commercialized specialists in athletics rather than at developing all-round citizens.

Yours sincerely,
J. C. FLANAGAN.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Barely a year after our triumph over the cruelest and most reactionary force the world has ever known, we hear flippant talk of the inevitability of a new war against our former allies. We should remember that it would be the young people who would do the fighting and the dying and that Canada would be the battleground in the event of such a war. Thus the duty of working towards a permanent world peace devolves upon the Canadian people and more especially, on Canadian youth.

During the war, youth played its part without reservation. Government spokesmen gave solemn promises that the post-war world would bring new opportunities for all young people. We have now waited more than a year for a glimpse of these promises. Young people expect opportunities for education, regardless of income; adequate health and recreational facilities; jobs on leaving school; job security and decent wages. The knowledge that these promises can be kept if the government wants to keep them has presented youth with a challenge.

In answer to this challenge more than three thousand Canadian youth organizations are convening at the end of this month to participate in a Labor Youth Parliament initiated by the National Federation of Labor Youth. Sessions are to be held in Toronto, November 29th, 30th and December 1st.

This Parliament will give youth an opportunity to express itself on these pressing issues and to formulate a program of action.

The program will include the following:

- A. Four bills will be debated and passed. These concern:
 1. Conditions of work.
 2. Education
 3. Health
 4. Recreation
- B. Discussion of Foreign Policy

with regard to the maintenance of world peace.

C. Addresses by leaders of political parties and trade unions.

After the bills have been passed, a delegation will visit Ottawa and present the bills to members of Parliament who are in a position to act on them.

All youth organizations and any organization with youth among its members can send delegates. This includes trade unions, Y's, farm organizations, church groups, cultural groups, high school and university clubs and community groups of all kinds. No youth organization is barred. It need only endorse the fundamental principle of the Youth Parliament, which is that youth must fight for a many-sided program of social measures for the good of young people.

What should be the attitude of university students to this Parliament?

Students constitute that segment of youth which is primarily engaged in the study and hence the possible improvement of the world in which they live. Our futures are intimately bound up with the future of Canadian youth in general. A properly balanced youth parliament requires the active participation of this segment which is in a position to make so valuable a contribution.

There are many clubs and organizations on this campus which concern themselves with the problems under discussion. We believe that these clubs should give serious consideration to sending delegates to this Labor Youth Parliament.

'La loi du nord' Stars R.C.M.P.

Canada is well represented in "La loi du Nord", the film now playing at Le Cinema de Paris. The climax of the plot turns around the loyalty of an R.C.M.P. Corporal, who, true to his duty, brings back to justice an escaped murderer and his secretary—even though that secretary is the beautiful Michele Morgan. Pierre Richard Willm plays the millionaire businessman who murders his wife's lover. Two friendly lawyers plot to have him declared insane. He is taken to an asylum, whence he escapes to the Canadian North West.

This last part of the picture is beautifully filmed. There is no music on the sound track. The voices can be heard, ringing over the snowy wastes. And in the agonized search for a passage, Westward, across the Rockies, we seem to live again an epic of the Coureurs des Bois.

Charles Vanel plays the R.C.M.P. Corporal; Jacques Feyder, the trapper who guides Michele Morgan and Pierre Richard Willm. The story is far fetched, but the acting atones for it. Direction and photography are excellent. On the same programme are two shorts: "Un Caprice", a drawing room comedy, very short, very witty, by Alfred de Musset, and "Energie", a documentary, which is concerned with the French equivalent of Hydro-Quebec.

McGill Defeated By YMHA In Exhibition Basketball Tilt

We Lost

St. John's Edged By U. of M.

Dawson down—who's next? This is the cry of the now league-leading University of Montreal Intermediate M.B.L. squad. Last evening at Sir Arthur Currie Gym the highly-touted Montreal team edged out a 34-29 victory over the St. John's squad in a closely fought battle.

WHO IS WINNING?

The game was a nip and tuck affair with each point counting for what might have been the margin of victory. All through the first half and most of the second the Red and Blue defence held the Montreals in check. Up to the last two minutes the teams hugged close together with neither one having more than a three point advantage at any time.

At half time the score was 18-14 for Dawson with the splendid playing of Brian Laing and Collin McKinnon holding the team in the lead. However, in the second stanza five baskets by Guy Larochelle coupled with the weakening of a tired St. John's defence lead the way to the ultimate 34-29 victory.

This year will see some of the best college skiers in North America congregating at St. Marguerite as McGill plays host to the Intercollegiate Ski Union.

The I.S.U. is composed of a group of American and Canadian colleges in the so called "snow belt" and divided into a senior and intermediate divisions. McGill is in the senior division, but at present a Canadian intermediate division is being contemplated and McGill will probably enter a team in this section as well. So there is a chance for you bashers who couldn't make the first string last season.

McGILL PLANS MEET

In accordance with the pre-war system of each college in turn holding the meet, this year McGill is doing the organising. The meet is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, February 28 and March 1 at St. Marguerite's with the downhill and slalom being held on Baldy and the jump on Cochin's new take off. The cross-country, better known as the "Longlauf" or just the "grind" will weave around the general vicinity for a distance of 8.2 miles.

The team will be picked with the help of honorary coach Harry Pangman according to the results of the various meets this winter, and will consist of eight men, five racing in each event and four to count.

McGill Rally In Final Moments Is Unsuccessful

Davidon Scores Fourteen As Basketmen Lose 42-36

RALPH PEARCEY

Although George Davidon came through in the dying moments of the game with a sensational flurry of baskets, the McGill Senior Cagers failed to overcome a big Y.M.H.A. lead, and lost their first game of the season last night, 42-36. With but five minutes to go the Redmen were on the short end of a 40-19 count, and it was only by a strong finish that the boys avoided a drubbing. The game was by nature an experiment of Lou Davies, and he shifted sixteen of his squad in and out like hockey lines in an effort to discover his best men.

Davidon was by all odds the pick of the floor, and besides leading the scoring totals with a fine fourteen points, played a sparkling game all round. Murray Waxman of the "Y" potted twelve, mostly in the second half, to take second place.

Lou Davies opened by starting his old reliables Goodwin, Weisberg, Hoyle, Roth, and Davidon, but the combination wouldn't click at first. Mainly they fed the ball to big Mart Goodwin in the pivot spot, but Mart seemed to have trouble focussing his new contact lenses on the basket. The shifting man-to-man defence of YMHA proved troubling. Half-way

Dear Coeds,

First of all my thanks to Betty A. without whose help this column would never have been written!

Fencing is again in the news: according to Adoree Lebrooy the club's activities are now in full swing. For which reason Sheila Parnell and Mary Lea Featherstonehaugh have been appointed assistant managers. Sheila will be coping with the routine managerial tasks while Mary Lea has charge of the social side of the club. (After all one can hardly call wielding dangerous (?) weapons acceptable social behavior, or can we?) She will have a chance to display her abilities in this field at the opening club dance of the year which will be held shortly. Good luck both of you in your new jobs.

FITTING FOILS

There is still room for novice fencers in the club and these will be cordially welcomed with open arms. Those beginners who have already joined are making excellent progress and will be able to participate in the forthcoming tournament. Two teams are being organized under the direction of June Organ and Sheila Parnell: one for exhibition and one for competition. There are still vacancies on these teams so that any coed with aspirations in this direction should make her wishes known. After that it is only a matter of time, energy and hard work before her ambitions are realized. This should not be too difficult under the excellent coaching of George Tully. Anyway, it's worth a try especially with Olympic Games in the not too distant future.

Red Natators Score Victory At Maisonneuve

The McGill Junior Water Polo Team were victorious on the first time this year when they defeated Maisonneuve ten to three. The game was played last night at the M.A.A.A. pool with Referee Jacobs directing the proceedings. The game was the fastest and definitely the cleanest the Redmen have played to date. The main reason for this fairness play was the referee's strict ruling on any attempts to drown a man when he was in possession of the ball.

The Red Team's most brilliant defensive display was when, with a man short, they held off Maisonneuve and finally scored a goal themselves. The chief goal getter for the McGill team was Fineburg who slammed home six goals. Hoffman tallied two more with Cameron and Brenhouse completing the score with one apiece. For Maisonneuve the Nestro brothers were the most effective scoring two thirds of the teams goals.

McGill played the game without any substitutes. This obviously indicates the necessity or more players. Anyone interested is asked to contact Arnold Brenhouse or Iain E. Fraser.

Knockout Tilts At Currie Gym Squash Courts

This coming Saturday afternoon will see the first Knockout Handicap Singles Tournament of the season at 1.30 p.m. This popular type of tournament has been run with great success for many years at the M.A.A.A. They hold the record entry list of 69 players in one evening, but that record should be beaten on Saturday.

The tournament is first of all a handicap affair with a beginner having a better than even chance to oust some member of McGill's intercollegiate team. Secondly, the whole tournament is run off in the one afternoon, as every match consists of one 21 point game and a player keeps in action till he loses. So in no time at all a winner is declared, who is slightly the worse for wear, but should be enough recovered to sit in on lectures by Monday morning. We want to see all you beginners out, as the handicaps will be generous for everyone except team members, who are going to get it in the neck. A list is in the men's locker-room, so let's sign up for Saturday, November 23rd. Post entries will be taken until 1.30 p.m. that day.

Soccer Squad To Play Under Lights Tonight

At 8.30 tonight the Mazdas go on at Molson Stadium to spotlight an exhibition soccer match between McGill and an all-star aggregation from the Montreal leagues.

Right now the players on the all-star eleven are not known as Andy Menyes, who is organizing the team, hasn't released a list of the personnel. However, the McGill squad will be opposed by a rugged, well-balanced group of soccermen.

"WE WANNA WIN"

The game has taken on the aspect of a crusade for the Redmen—a crusade to win their first match. In five previous starts they have failed to win, although they have played two tie games. Twice they have suffered setbacks at the hands of their hostile brethren from Dawson, but in their other two meetings they held the power-packed Blue and White to a draw. In their other tilt the Red squad were defeated by Westmount 3-0. The McGill boys were outclassed by the Westmount team's ability to control the ball on a muddy playing surface.

Lining up to play for McGill "until the last drop of blood, she am spilled" will be Samuels, Lindo, Guishard, Wolvin, Wood, R. Smith, Ferrier, Dale, Walcott, Stauble, Tunis, Ellington and Barnard.

Whoops, We Won

Georgians Defeated By McGill

Last night, behind the east-end partitions of the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium, McGill's Intermediate crew walloped the champion Georgians to the tune of a 39-34 victory in the season's debut. The victorious Redmen led by the sharp eyes of Evans and Dilkovsky outshone and outplayed the Sir George aggregate, despite the brilliant shooting of Kis and McIntosh who notched a total of 26 pts.

The game opened with a fast and eager offensive on the part of both teams, and was closely contested to final whistle. Play went on at a sizzling rate for most of the first half with Edo and Evans doing the honors with six and four points respectively. Kis and McIntosh spearheaded the Georgian attack with the table support of Suarez and Weston. At the end of the first half McGill led 21-16, a margin of victory which they never relinquished.

SWISH

Kis and McIntosh opened wide the second half with beautiful passing which led McGill to call time out with the score 27-26 in their favor with only 15 minutes left to go. Gelineau and Evans led a red counterattack to get a strong 35-29 lead, which was for a moment challenged by Kis' answer with two quick field goals. Hodge flipped a basket to give the red combine a 37-33 lead which was never threatened; it was referee's time out — four minutes to go.

The last four minutes of play were comparatively slow and Ruthenford's charges came through with a 39-34 victory.

Club NewsINTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

A meeting to decide policy and organization of the club will be held today at five o'clock in the Music Room of the McGill Union. Amendments to the constitution will be proposed and voted upon, and suggestions will be called for from the floor.

Proposals have already been put forward with a view to extending the present executive of three members to eight, and of setting up a system of committees to cover such phases of the Club's activities as the executive members direct:

President—General Organization, Policy and Programme; Vice-President in charge of Study Groups; Vice-President in charge of General Meetings—Films and Speakers; Corresponding Secretary; Social Secretary—Membership and Social Activities; Recording Secretary; Treasurer; Publicity Director.

It has been suggested also that Committees be established to do the spade-work required for 1) Film Selection, 2) Speakers, 3) Social Activities, 4) Publicity—members to assist Director, feature articles, reports of meetings, findings of study groups at McGill and International Conferences of Students; 5) Study Group Organization, Faculty Representatives—Political Science, Sociology, Medicine, Engineering, International Law, Economics, etc.; 6) McGill representation at International, Student, and Youth Conferences and in exchange of Canadian Students with those of other countries.

A plan for study groups will be determined by the students attending this meeting; attendance is open to all students on the campus, full-time or partials.

Discussion will be called for from the floor to select the hours and dates most convenient to the members, with an effort being made to vary these times, so as to permit the greatest participation.

Jack Griffen, last year's Tachereau winner, has his own exercise which will tax the endurance of the hardest; imagine there is a chair against the wall, sit against the wall as though you were sitting on it . . . for how long? Try it and see! By the way, those notices about ski meetings up in the Currie Gym do not mean for men only. An excellent ski film will be shown at 5:00 p.m. today so if you are a ski enthusiast, don't miss it!

Because of the concert on Friday, there will be no intersection basketball games on Friday. Congratulations are definitely in order for the excellent turnouts at these matches and especially for the fact that there has only been one default which was apparently unavoidable. Keep up the good work, managers, you're doing a good job. After three hard games last Friday, the following scores resulted: E defeated A 6-3, D defeated G 25-15, and F defeated C 35-12. In last night's matches, A and C defeated H and G 17-4, 25-11 respectively. This puts sections D and E in the lead with three wins and no losses.

In the intercity, intercollegiate news, the teams have not yet been chosen although they will be soon, as the intercity league will be getting started in the near future. The practice will be held as usual in the Currie Gym from 7:30-9:30 p.m. and Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m. There is still a chance to try out for team positions or you can come out for the fun of it!

BIRD BRAINS

Last Tuesday a large crowd of badminton fiends flocked to the gym for the tryouts. As a result, a tentative team has been chosen to enter the M.A.A.A. tournament. There will also be an intersection tournament next week, Nov. 26, 27 and 28 at which each section will be represented by an eight player team. With so much badminton enthusiasm around, there ought to be keen competition. Ann Merston wishes to remind managers that she would like all entries in by Friday night, please!
